

Saturday Clinic for the Uninsured

CareMessage Consent

CareMessage is a nonprofit organization with a mission to help healthcare organizations to improve the patient experience, health literacy, and self-management for underserved populations.

CareMessage uses text messaging (SMS) and phone calls for communication with patients. Patients can respond to all text messages from their phones and do not need to log into a web portal like MyChart.

We will be using CareMessage to communicate with you about your health care including: availability of test results, appointment reminders, health education resources, and patient satisfaction surveys.

You can also use CareMessage to directly contact our managers about your health – if you have questions about a medication change or a new symptom, you can text us via CareMessage to reach out to us.

Message and data rates may apply when texting, so please be aware your phone bill may change as a result of using CareMessage if you do not have an “unlimited call & text” plan. Anticipate receiving one to three texts per month from CareMessage.

By signing below, I consent to allow the Saturday Clinic for the Uninsured to use CareMessage, a HIPAA compliant platform, to contact me as a patient.
