

Saturday Clinic for the Uninsured

Specialty Clinics No-Show Policy

SCU is lucky to have cardiologists, psychiatrists, and other types of physicians come in occasionally to provide SCU patients with specialty care. When patients do not show up to these appointments, and fail to call to cancel or reschedule their appointment, this is considered a 'no-show'. No shows deny other patients the opportunity to be seen and discourages our specialty volunteer physicians from wanting to volunteer their time.

As of July 2024, we will proceed with a 3-strike policy for 'no-shows' to the specialty clinics. The first and second time a patient 'no-show's' to their specialty clinic appointment will be considered warnings. After the third time a patient 'no-show's', they may be subject to a one-year suspension of specialty clinic services. Please note, however, that this will not apply to our primary care clinic.

We know that unexpected situations sometimes arise. In the case of emergencies, we may waive the no-show strike. Waivers are determined on a case-by-case basis.

If you have questions about our no-show policy, or you're experiencing an emergency, please call the clinic phone at (414) 588-2865.

By signing below, I acknowledge I understand the policy above and will follow it to the best of my ability.
